WHEN IS A WATCH CHEAP?

The movement of the watch that will give trustworthy service for a life-time is the watch that is cheap in the economic sense. Here value and price coincide in meaning because value is realised in price and price becomes the measure of value.

So-called cheap watches, flashily cased, containing highly polished movements with an ostentatious display of jewels (?) of indifferent character, and to sell at cut prices are dear at any price. Watches of this character soon need replacing, becoming thereby a recurring drain on one's resources.

It is economy to spend Rs. 50 on one watch that will give you of its best for 15 to 20 years: but it is not economy to spend Rs. 150 to Rs. 200 at about Rs. 10 per year on 15 to 20 or may be 30 common Watches for the same period.

WALTHAM WATCHES

sell at a fair price and those offered by us under our name-guarantee with the addition of the WALTHAM name can be depended upon as watches which will last a life-time.

The following watches of the WALTHAM manufacture are now offered by us:

WALTHAM POCKET WATCH

High Grade Jewelled lever movement fitted with compensated balance and brequet hairspring, folding into one piece, dust-proof case with screw bezel.

Nickel Rs. 35 Silver Rs. 45.

WALTHAM WRIST WATCH

This is a Boot that we can thoroughly recommend.

COMMERCIAL.

DUNCH COTTON FOR GERMANY.

Responsible commercial correspondents in London sent to the "Manchester Guardian" during mail week some remarkable figures, which it is assured, are from the Dutch Board of Trade returns, showing Holland's imports and exports of cotton in the first half of this year. They indicate very clearly that Dutch firms have imported considerable quantities of the staple, with the intention of selling it to Germans, who, it was known, would be prepared to pay a big price. In considering this action, however, we have to bear in mind that cotton has never been declared contraband, and, further, that it is believed its importation by the enemy through Holland has now been as nearly as possible stopped. It was not stopped, however, in time to have much effect before June 30. What may be called the Submarine Reprisals Order of March 11 permitted the fulfilment of contracts in respect of goods on ships which sailed not later than March 31, and of course we could not interfere with cotton already stored in Rotterdam on German account. Since then we have made an arrangement by which we only permit shipments to the Netherlands Oversea Trust, who accept the supervision of the chief British Consular official in Holland and undertake that the goods shall not be sent on to the enemy, but the Act which completed our scheme did not receive a second reading in the House of Commons until June 22. With this explanation, which it is obviously very necessary to make, we now give the Dutch cotton import figures (in metric tons) for the first six months of the year, compared with those for the corresponding period of last year:—

IMPORTS.

| From | 1915. | 1914. |
|---|---|---|
| U. S. A. | 87,119 | 7,815 |
| British India | — | 156 |

| Great Britain | 11,981 | 3,464 |
| Germany | 839 | 19.960 |
| Other countries | 3,849 | 35,398 |

EXPORTS.

| Sweden | 109 | 294 |
| Other countries | 1,452 | 3,850 |
| | 94,823 | 48,570 |

The total imports of cotton oil were 45.098 tons (in 1914 8,483 tons and in 1913 13,823 tons), of which Great Britain supplied 21,356 tons (as against 2,783 tons in 1914 and 671 tons in 1913). The quantity re-exported to Germany was 11,349 tons, as against 6,572 and 11,433. The linseed oil imports, nearly all of which were from Great Britain, were 29,504 tons, as against 265 and 443. The exports were 83,079 tons, as against 16,436 and 11,182. Germany getting 78,516, as against 3,388 and 2,484. The exports of meat to Germany were 118,559 tons, as against 5,346 and 9,514, of coffee 82,351, as against 25,522 and 25,192, and of potato meal 45,293, as against 11,411 and 10,705.

COTTON STORAGE PLAN AND ITS EFFECT

Interviewed in London on July 29, Sir Charles Macara referred to the fact that in September last he promoted a scheme for dealing with the cotton problem. This, he said, would have not only have had a most important bearing upon the world's cotton industry but, by getting a certain control of the largest cotton crop ever grown, might have had a material effect upon the duration of the war.

The scheme, Sir Charles went to say, was unfortunately not adopted, but the effect of the propaganda work was undoubtedly to minimise a disastrous fall in prices and the subsequent heavy financial loss to all engaged in the industry. Notwithstanding this educational process losses have been extremely severe, but they might have been much greater. The proposition made to the statesmen of England and America was that that portion of the crop should be purchased which under the circumstances would not be required for immediate consumption. This would have the effect of preventing enormous losses to those directly engaged in this great industry, and would also have obviated to a large extent the reduction in the revenues of both countries. It is said that the acreage under cotton has been reduced from 15 to 20 per cent. I cannot tell whether this estimate is correct or not. I am convinced, however, that there has been a much larger consumption for war munitions than any one could have calculated upon at the beginning of the war. This exceptional consumption and the educational programme in the direction of the establishment of a reserve of cotton served to raise the price of cotton from about 4d. per pound to 5½d.—roughly 1½d. per pound. Unfortunately, large quantities of cotton have percolated through neutral countries to enemy countries.

I quite admit that the problem is a difficult one, especially at a time of financial stringency, but such some means could be devised for creating a reserve, to be used after the war, by the Governments of England and the United States guaranteeing the people whose business is to handle the cotton crop of the world. With reference to the exports of cotton from the United States of America, it must be noted that the stocks at Liverpool are double the quantity held last year at this time, and that the stock at Genoa, which is now stopped from going to enemy countries, is many times larger than usual. These large extra stocks have to be taken into account along with the new crop, which will begin to arrive shortly.

It is now generally admitted that if my proposals had been adopted they might have been of infinite service to humanity, in which, I am sure, statesmen at all events are deeply concerned. I firmly hold that if they had been adopted the war might have been brought to an end either by Christmas or by March last, and even if grappled with now, nothing is more certain than that the end will come all the more quickly.

GOLD FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

(News Bureau.)

SIMLA, Aug. 23.

A Press communiqué issued to-day states:—

As was explained in an announcement made on the 5th August, 1914, the Government of India have been conserving their gold resources in this country throughout the present crisis with a view to supporting exchange and contribution to the Secretary of State's requirements whenever this might be found desirable.

It has now been decided in pursuance of that intention to place 2 million pounds of the gold held in India at the disposal of the Secretary of State. The expenses and inconvenience of actual shipment will, however, be avoided by ear-marking that sum as held in India on account of the Bank of England, the latter making the equivalent payments to the Secretary of State in London.

The transaction will be effected realising two million pounds of gold hitherto held in the paper currency reserve and cancelling three crores of notes held in the treasury balance. The result will be to diminish both the treasury balances and the nominal note circulation to that extent.

(News Bureau.)

AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS IN U. P

(News Bureau.)

LUCKNOW, Aug. 23.

The following is the official summary of the latest crop and weather reports of the United Provinces:—Rain is urgently needed in the Upper Doab, Central Doab, Western Submontane tracts and Jhansi. Good rain has fallen elsewhere. In Mathura the standing crops are withering and insects, locusts and floods have slightly damaged crops in a few districts. The weeding of kharif crops and preparation of fields for rabi are in full swing. Harvesting of early rice has begun in some districts. The agricultural crop is in good condition, though cattle disease still exists. Food, fodder and water are ample everywhere except at Saharanpur which reports deficiency of pasturage. Prices are fairly steady but tend to a rise especially in the west of the Province where less rain fell. Prices show an advancing tendency. There is some export of wheat to Calcutta and import of wheat and grain from the Punjab. The import of Burma rice continues. The condition of the labouring classes is satisfactory and plague has practically disappeared.

The Bill relating to the consolidation of Indian Statutes passed in Parliament—has not yet been received in India. The Bill however does not come into force as law, till the 1st January, 1916. Possibly the proposed amending Bill will not be available for some months yet.

STANDARD BAROMETER READING.

The following information is published in order that vessels in the Bombay Harbour may, by comparison with a standard instrument ascertain the errors of their barometers:

The reading of the Standard Barometer at the Colaba Observatory corrected for index error and reduced to 80 deg. F. and to the level of the tide, at 8-45 a.m. Standard Time on the 24th August 1915, was 29.805 inches. For temperature corrections applicable to mercurial barometer of ships the reading of the ship's barometer has to be increased or decreased by .031 inch for every 5 degrees according as the temperature of the attached thermometer is respectively below or above 80 deg. F. In case of the aneroid no temperature correction is needed. But for comparison at 80 F. a' aneroid readings should be increased by .136 inch. For correcting the ship's barometer, either mercurial or aneroid for the height of the barometer cistern above the tide level in the stream at 8-45 a.m., Standard Time, the ship's barometer reading should be increased by .010 inch. for every 10 feet of the height to make it comparable with the observatory barometer reading given above.

CRICKET AT BULSAR.

A very interesting match was played at Bulsar yesterday on the Bai Avabai High School Cricket ground between Sir J. J. P. B. Athletic Association players who styled themselves "The Athletic Cricket Club" and the Bai Avabai High School team. Thirteen players represented each side. The Athletic Cricket Club won the toss and preferred to send in the B. A. H. S. team for batting, who compiled in all 88 runs. Mr. Surajlal Shroff scored 37 runs in splendid form. The Athletic Cricket Club contrary to all expectations could only reply with 34 runs against the deadly bowling of Wadia, Hadiwalla, and Ambalal Desai who sent no less than seven players to the tent with 0 to their credit. Wadia took 4 wickets for 10 runs. Hodiwalla disposed of 3 for 10 and Ambalal Desai 3 for 11. In their second venture the Bai Avabai High School team scored 54 for the loss of 4 wickets only in which Shroff scored 20 and Mehta Amratlal added 14 to the score. Thus it being a day's match the Bai A. H. S. team won it by 54 runs.

BURMA AGRICULTURAL AND CO-OPERATIVE CONFERENCE

SIR HARVEY ADAMSON PRESIDES AT THE THIRD SESSION.

(News Bureau.)

RANGOON, Aug. 24.

The Lieutenant Governor who arrived at Mandalay yesterday will preside at the third Burma Provincial Agricultural and Co-operative Conference which will be held there from to-day (Tuesday) to Friday. Sir Harvey Adamson attended the first Conference held in the Province in 1911 and was away on leave in 1913. He has shown his very evident interest in the linked Departments of Agriculture and the Co-operative Credit Societies by finding time to preside personally at the third Conference, the last time that he will have an opportunity of attending before his departure from the Province.

The Conference opens with the general meeting of the Upper Burma Central Co-operative Bank Ltd., this morning (August 24th) and this will be followed in the afternoon by a general meeting of the Conference in the Durbar Hall in the Royal Palace when the Lieutenant-Governor will preside. The next two days will be devoted to the meetings of ten sub-committees whose sessions will be held twice daily till Friday (August 27th) when at the final general meeting they will present their reports embodying practical conclusions under each head of the many selected subjects suggested for discussion.

YESTERDAY'S RACING AT POONA.

FIFTH EXTRA MEETING.

BIG HOLIDAY CROWD.

EXCITING AND INTERESTING SPORT.

(By Our Racing Correspondent.)

Yesterday, being Cocoanut Day one of the most general holidays of the year, the G. I. P. Railway in anticipation of a large crowd of holiday-makers visiting Poona, very thoughtfully decided to run a double "special" in two divisions. Their foresight was amply rewarded, for two train loads left the Terminus, in addition to a full complement by the earlier train. The bulk, if not all, the travellers wended their way to the race course to attend the Fifth Extra Meeting, where probably the most interesting and attractive fixture of the season so far, had been framed for their enjoyment. The weather was simply glorious: delightfully cool, with not too much sun: and with the exception of the sensation of a sprinkle when the sixth race was up for discussion, there was no rain to mar the pleasure of a thoroughly enjoyable sporting holiday. As we are nearing the big meeting, one or two of the big racing-guns made an appearance just to let everyone see what they were looking like, and how they were likely to shape in the coming big events of the season.

The Harris Plate introduced a few of the classy ones, and the perfection of their condition as they paraded round the paddock prior to the race reflected the greatest credit on the respective trainers, and this preliminary show of a few of the best blood-stock in the country excited as much public attention as the race that followed. The customary remark to make, is to say that they looked slightly on the big side and appeared to be short of a gallop or two to put the final "setting" on. To my eye this was not the case yesterday, for I have never seen Kempion, Cider, Matchlock, St. Andrews and Punt looking better when stripped for the Western Indian stakes of the Aga Khan's Cup. The fact, however, of Orloff winning the race so convincingly at the weights, suggests that I was wrong in this respect, and one or two of the horses I have named were by no means wound up to their utmost galloping capacity, otherwise Mr. Heath's horse could not have won the Harris Plate and Jacamar run second at the scale of weights they carried yesterday. When the Western India stakes comes up for discussion, the result will prove whether I was right or wrong. Apropos of this I have heard a curious story which may be taken for what it is worth—nothing more or less, than that a pronounced five-furlong sprinter is in active preparation for the Western India stakes, and from the work he is putting in, his connections consider the race at his mercy if his burden does not exceed the seven-stone mark. No it is not Fire Finch or Lola—try again. Kempion appeared to me in excellent fettle and so did Cider, and though there seems to be very little between them on yesterday's running, I imagine Mr. R. R. S's will develop into the better of the two within the next ten days.

There were one or two glaring cases of horses being "left," at the start so badly that their chances of winning were completely eliminated, and the fact simply confirms what I suggested last Monday, that some of the jockeys don't care a "continental" for either the Stewards or public opinion with regard to the slovenly unworkmanlike way they perform the duties entrusted to them; and as there has been a good deal of dissatisfaction openly expressed on this point, it is to be hoped some steps will soon be taken to mitigate the evil.

The most interesting Arab event was probably the Teheran Plate. It was a splendid handicap, and though Mr. Reynolds had allowed fully for Royal Court's easy win in the Kolhapur Plate at the third extra, the public were disposed to think that Mr. Goculdass's smart colt was capable of repeating the performance by running away wtih this race, and plumped for him accordingly. They, however, reckoned without taking Bleach sufficiently into account in having tuned up Nizam-ul-mulk to an extraordinary pitch of perfection, and in spite of the heavy impost of 9st 2lbs, Mr. Garda's horse accounted for the race very comfortably. It was a great feather in this capable trainer's cap and he fully deserves the congratulations accorded him when Hill returned to scale.

The Matheran Plate was whispered round as a good thing for Partner and as he came swinging round into the straight with a substantial lead, with Hoyt still holding on, it looked any odds on his winning. Friend Zamil, however, once more dropped from the clouds and pouncing down on Hoyt in one of his characteristic whirlwind finishes, blew the unfortunate Partner all to atoms, just when victory seemed to be within his grasp. I am not going to indulge in any further invidious comments on the merits of this brilliant young Arab horseman, but his performance on Maurice yesterday goes very far to confirm the tribute I paid to his capabilities a few days ago. I cannot see why Full Moon should have been allotted 8st 12lbs. in this company, and I must have missed something about his performances to justify the weight. Speaking generally, I am of opinion the handicapper is inclined to be too severe on the newly landed ponies.

The Lansdowne Plate was a very nicely balanced event and the presence of a couple of more or less unknown quantities in Sparkes and Drill Mistress, served to deepen the mystery, as both have fairly good English credentials, each of the pair being capable of effecting a surprise if on the top of their home form. Mr. Goculdass's combination naturally came in for a good deal of attention, and Lady Douglas was strongly fancied in some quarters, Seignurie, however, won somewhat easily, very capably handled by Bowley, who, taking advantage of Lady Douglas's propensities for running wide round the turn, cleverly slipped in on the rails and it was all over. Bence has got his charges into splendid condition and will probably win an event or two during the coming meetings with ordinary luck.

CRICKET AT POONA.

BOMBAY GYMKHANA V. POONA GYMKHANA.

(From our Correspondent.)

POONA, Aug. 24.

The match between the Bombay Gymkhana and the Poona Gymkhana was resumed this afternoon and resulted in an unexpected victory for the Poona Gymkhana by 12 runs and two wickets.

The tide turned in favour of the home team during the second half of the game and many a surprise was in store for the visitors.

The Poona Gymkhana who were beaten by 29 runs in the first innings displayed a marked improvement in the second innings. Though they opened in a disheartening fashion with one wicket down for 3 runs the rout was immediately stopped by Pratt and Yates. Both these players batted in a very spirited manner and maintained the partnership for over two hours, compiling runs in rapid succession. Yates in particular soon settled down to the bowling and hit out vigorously to all parts of the field. Hastings (11) and Holman (9) were the next two principal contributors on the winning side.

At the fall of the eighth wicket for 137 runs the Poona Gymkhana declared their innings closed.

The Bombay Gymkhana in their second venture opened in a more promising manner than their opponents and one was led to expect an evitable defeat for the home eleven, but the visitors out of over-confidence began hitting out recklessly and suffered themselves to be caught. No fewer than seven players were caught out. McCormack (30) was the principal contributor on the Bombay side. At the fall of the last wicket the visitors had registered 96 runs, the same number as in their first innings.

LAHORE SPECIAL TRIBUNAL

(News Bureau.)

LAHORE, Aug. 24.

It is expected that the Commissioners of the Lahore Special Tribunal now in Simla writing judgment, will deliver their judgment in Lahore on or about the 15th September. No arrangements have yet been made for the supplementary cases in which about half a dozen men are concerned. But probably they will be taken up when the judgment in the main case has been pronounced.

QUADRANGULAR CRICKET.

PARSI TEAM SELECTED.

The Parsi Selection Committee met yesterday, when the following were selected to represent the Parsis against the Hindus in the first round of the Quadrangular cricket matches to be played at Poona on the 6th, 7th and 8th September:

(1) Dr. H. D. Kanga (Capt.)
(2) Mr. J. S. Warden.
(3) Mr. M. B. Vatcha.
(4) Mr. B. H. Mirza.
(5) Mr. H. F. Mulla.
(6) Mr. S. M. Chothia.
(7) Mr. R. P. Meherhormji
(8) Mr. D. K. Kapadia.
(9) Mr. D. D. Driver.
(10) Mr. M. D. Parukh.
(11) Mr. H. F. Vajifdar.

Reserves: Mr. J. Ellavia and Mr. J. Elchidana.

The team has a triplet of good bowlers in Mirza, Warden and Vatcha, and a fine quartette of batsmen in Warden, Kanga, Meherhomji and Driver. There is little chance of Mulla participating in the game, in which case P. J. Chinoy will be asked to keep the wickets. Chinoy is equally smart behind the wickets and is in finer form than his rival and the selection of Mulla in preference to him will therefore not command universal approval. As to the other players, Dr. Kanga, the Parsi skipper, is an all-round man. It would be idle to pretend that he is quite the formidable bat that he was half a decade ago. He then had an almost impregnable defence but lately his batting has shown a distinct falling-off and he now no longer holds the position of being the most reliable and scientific bat among the Parsis. He is a useful change bowler and a smart field. Warden is perhaps the best all-rounder among his co-religionists to-day. He possesses an excellent defence and when he is well set his is a most difficult wicket to dislodge. He closely watches every ball and his batting presents a fine combination of great powers of punishment and a tough defence. His powers of attack have for the last couple of years shown some weakening; but he is still in the front rank of Parsi bowlers. Meherhomji, the "Palairet of the Parsis" is a pretty bat to watch. Last year he could not play owing to ill-health but he is in fine form this season and great things are expected of him on the Poona wickets. Mirza will lead the Parsi attack and though he is not quite so good as last year his attack is still deadly enough to enable him to gather in a good harvest of wickets. Vajifdar has been selected on his all-round form. He is an useful change bowler and is a fairly good bat, who could prove useful to his side if he only refrained from trying to send every ball that he got to the boundary. Driver has an excellent defence and is a smart field. Chothia owes his selection more to his past reputation than to anything done by him this season. But he is considered to be one of those "match-players" who come off more in big fixtures than in ordinary local matches. He is a fast formidable bat if he gets going. Vatcha, who comes in as a bowler, has always been more effective on the Poona than on the Bombay wickets. Kapadia has hitherto failed to fulfil the high expectations entertained of him and he has come in because no new talent has been unearthed during the year which could replace him. Parukh is an all-round man. Of the two reserves, Ellavia is a good bowler and Elchidana a moderate bat.

PARSI GYM. V HINDU GYM.

WARDEN AND RANA IN GREAT FORM.

The return match between the Parsi Gymkhana and the Hindu Gymkhana came off yesterday on the Kennedy Sea Face. The game, which was witnessed by a large number of spectators, provided some very interesting sport. Both sides had put strong teams in the field, nearly a dozen men, who have at one time or another played in the Quadrangular fixtures, participating in the game.

M. D. Pai, the Hindu Captain, won the toss, but he elected to send the Parsis in, in view of the condition of the wicket after the smart showers of rain which had come down in the morning and which also delayed a start being made until after 2 p.m. The Parsi Gymkhana made 147 runs, to which the Hindu Gymkhana replied with a total of 132 for 6 wickets, when time was called, the match thus resulting in a draw.

The outstanding feature of the Parsi innings, and indeed of the whole day's batting, was the brilliant batting display of Warden. Almost all his colleagues were uncomfortable with Chanda Rana's puzzling deliveries, which pretty frequently kicked up in a very awkward manner. But Warden met all the Hindu attack with a superb confidence from the very start, and knocked up 68 in brilliant fashion. His innings was unmarred by a single chance, his chief hits being ten 4's. The rest of the Parsi batsmen were unable to achieve anything substantial against the deadly attack of Chandarana; and indeed if it had not been for the fine stand made by Warden, the Parsi total would have found it difficult to reach three figures.

The higest individual score on the Hindu side was contributed by Pai, who played a fine, exhilarating innings of 37. He made a couple of faulty strokes, of which the first which he made at the commencement, very nearly cost him his innings. Otherwise he played beautiful cricket, his innings including two 6's and a like number of 4's. Ganpat also played fine cricket for his 28.

The bowling honours of the day were carried off by M. H. Chanda Rana, who secured the fine analysis of 6 wickets for 61 runs. Warden was the only batsman on the Parsi side who could meet his attack with confidence, the rest being almost entirely at the mercy of this bowler. The scores:

THE HARWOOD LEAGUE.

ROYAL GARRISON ARTILLERY (4); LUSITANIANS (0)

One of the slowest and most uninteresting games yet witnessed on the Cooperage, was played last evening between the Royal Garrison Artillery and the Lusitanians. The Artillery won by the small margin of four goals to nil, after monopolising the whole of the game. A score of about twenty goals would have been a truer index of the day's play, but the Artillery are still so miserably weak in front of goal that four goals were all they could get. The Artillery forwards will have to instil more vigour into their game and will have to shoot with greater accuracy if they hope to beat the Medicals, Y. M. C. A. and Bombay Gymkhana in their return games, and thus retain the premier position in the League Table. The inners work their way through the defence cleverly and the wingmen centre well, but there it ends, the whole quintette showing a distinct distaste for shooting. The halves always work very hard, the backs usually have little to do. Dodd, the custodian, informs us that he is forgetting what he knows about goal-keeping, owing to the idle time he usually spends in goal, and is so tired of being a spectator, that he has decided to engage a few Indian boys that stand around the line to give him a little practice while the game is in progress. We are of opinion, however, that there will be little need for this, for he will doubtless have a hot time of it in their next few matches. The Lusitanians as usual could not muster a full eleven and had to take the field with only nine men. They played with three forwards and only crossed the half line on two or three occasions. Faria saved several good shots and Dominic, Martins and Pais did their best to stave off the Gunners attack.

Mr. Bennett supervised the game and his absolute inexperience with the whistle was accountable for several mistakes. He frequently pulled the Gunners up for fouls that were never committed. The R. G. A. are one of the cleanest sides in the League, their tactics always being above suspicion. Referee Bennett would do well to follow up the ball. On one occasion the ball passed well over the Lusitanians' goal-line, the referee was not in a position to see this, and the game went on, the Gunners being deprived of a goal.

The Gunners were all over their opponents from the start of the game, but could only notch two goals in the first moiety owing to faulty shooting on the part of the forwards. Massey and Llewlyn were the scorers.

The second half of the game was as slow and uninteresting as the first and in spite of numerous chances the Gunners could only add two more goals to their score, Massey being responsible for both goals. The game ended.

THE WORKING CLASSES AND THE WAR.

"I have come amongst you this afternoon to perform a very pleasant task, namely, to thank the large working class population in this city, for the patriotic support they have given to Government in this great struggle, in which the whole Empire is engaged, by quietly and courageously carrying out the duties of their various occupations, and in this way giving my Government the most valuable assistance in our administration in these anxious times."

Such were the significant words which Lord Willingdon addressed to a meeting of working men on Monday. They embody the recognition, expressed in no uncertain terms by the head of the Government, of the important part which the working classes of Bombay play in the life of the city and the extent to which their assistance and co-operation is essential for the due performance of the ordinary duties of administration. The need of such assistance is all the greater in anxious times like these, and that it was effectively and willingly rendered is evident from the action of the Government in presenting letters of thanks and certificates of merit to some leading members of the Kamgar Hitawardhak Sabha, as well as to various prominent mill jobbers and operatives who have helped the authorities in the dissemination of correct reports regarding the position of the Allies in the great war, and in dispelling the effects of baseless rumours amongst the illiterate and backward labouring classes of the city. It was certainly not surprising that in the first shock of the news of the outbreak of war some of the simple and unsophisticated workmen should have found their minds too unsettled to resist the temptation of taking part in the exodus of frightened people from the city. The visit of Lord Willingdon to mill localites last year and the efforts of the Sabha have fortunately counteracted the effect which malicious bazaar rumours had on simple and ill-informed minds, and we have now the welcome assurance of the Governor himself that the working class population of our city are quietly and courageously engaged in carrying out the duties of their occupations and thus indirectly helping their more fortunate citizens to live a life of ease and security.

We have all, certainly, reason to be gratified at this state of things. But only an indifferent and a too self-complacent mind can overlook the meaning and character of the support which the working class people are giving. They are the people who, along with other classes of the poor, have been most severely affected by the war and the economic conditions created by it. The Secretary of the Sabha gave a graphic description at the meeting of the life of these people. The number of mill operatives in this city, he said, is about two hundred thousand, most of whom are agriculturists. "In their own villages in the Konkans, Ghauts and Northern India, those men are invariably head over ears in debt, and reluctantly migrate to cities in order to improve their prospects. For a time they carry on a struggling existence. It is a hard job for them at the outset to get work in the mills. In service at last in the city they become further involved in money difficulties, owing to the practice prevailing in the mills of keeping the men's wages six weeks or more in arrears. In the city of Bombay they badly miss the open country life of their villages, and, owing to over-crowding and insanitary housing, they become victims to various diseases. The drink evil further victimises them. The ubiquitous Marwari and Pathan usurers have a perpetual hold over them. The law tout is again another evil influence, which impoverishes working men by instigating them to fight with their masters and strike work without adequate reasons." Thus is the working man surrounded by a host of evils, most of them forced upon him by the sordid greed of his fellow-men, who have no scruples in taking advantage of his ignorance and his poverty.

The extent to which the present hard times have aggravated the troubles, which are his ordinary lot, can as well be imagined as described. Now, therefore, more than ever does it behove Society and the State to repay the debt they owe to him. Has anything been done in this direction? His principal needs are education, economic security and healthy housing. Have the millowners, for instance, who are more directly concerned than others, decided to suspend the practice of keeping their employees' wages in arrears for more than six weeks? Have they and the Government yet made any adequate provision for the proper education of the working class children? How many millowners, again, have taken advantage of the amended Improvement Trust Act to provide better housing accommodation for their men? Lord Willingdon has, from the very beginning, taken a very keen interest in the conditions of working men, but so far his Government have not been able to inaugurate any practical measure for the amelioration of those conditions. We trust, however, that the promise he gave to them on Monday of active co-operation during the next two and a half years of his stay amongst us will fructify in some substantial improvement. But in this great work the co-operation of the millowners and of the educated classes is no less needed. We have previously stated that what is required, more than anything else, to redress the grievances and improve the status of the working men, is a strong organization composed of and managed by themselves. But, circumstanced as they are, it is idle to expect anything so potent for good to come about for a long time. It is, therefore, in this work that the co-operation of Government, the millowners and disinterested but practical educated men is necessary. But any organization that may be formed, if it is to attain its object, must be such as should exist not for the personal gain or advertisement of interested outsiders, but for the genuine promotion of the economic, educational and moral well-being of the working men themselves.

RANGOON MURDER TRIAL SCANDAL.

Judicially Burma is governed by the Civil Procedure Code and the Criminal Procedure Code is also believed to be in vogue. There are no special regulations governing any part of Burma, except the Shan States, whose constitution more or less corresponds to that of the autonomous Protected States of India. Upper Burma came under direct British rule in 1887. After a brief period of guerilla warfare the country settled down to peaceful occupation. Apart, however, from the inherent Burmese proclivities for brigandage the amount of crime in the province traceable not only to the Burmese but to the domiciled Indians, is extraordinary. As the police reports show, year after year a number of murders go unpunished. In the districts an undetected murder is the rule. In the environments of Rangoon and in the city itself assassination has lost its sensationalism. The state of affairs is due in a great measure to the condition of the Police. Burma is the province which produces the largest yield for the Imperial Exchequer, but the Budget grants are miserable doles. The wail for monetary succour has gone up year after year from the Burma Legislative Council. The Hon. Mr. M. Cowasji has often voiced public opinion in this respect. The latest phase of the mysterious ways of the under-manned and ill-controlled Rangoon Police and of the Law Courts there is exemplified by the murder of a clerk of the Chief Court. The offence was committed on the 22nd of May. Soon after three Mahomedans were arraigned. One of them is Mr. Saleh Gulam Ariff, one of the younger sons of the late enterprising Haji Gulam Ariff of Rander, near Surat, who went over to Rangoon about 50 years ago, and settling there, amassed an immense fortune.

The accused in the trial, we are referring to were charged, firstly with the murder of the Burmese clerk, and secondly, with causing evidence of the crime to disappear by throwing the body of the deceased into the Royal Lake. In the Magistrate's Court of Rangoon the enquiry lasted for 50 sittings and the accused were sent up to the Sessions. The Sessions were presided over by Mr. Justice Robinson, a judge of ripe experience and intimate knowledge of the ways of the Indians, their languages, and the methods of the criminal class. There is no doubt that, if the trial had taken its regular course, the ends of justice would have been achieved. In saying this we do not in the least imply that the accused who were liberated were guilty or that the murder is to be traced to any particular individual or individuals. Our object is to direct attention to a state of affairs in a province, the Police ways of which, to say the least, demand scrutiny. The unfortunate trial of the persecuted Mr. Arnold is still fresh in our memory. It is the grounds of the withdrawal of the charges produced by the Government Prosecutor on which more than idle curiosity should be concentrated. The Government pleader declared his inability to go on with the case because, in the first place, the exhibits in the case had been tampered with since the Magisterial enquiry! This is a confession which speaks volumes for itself, and less amazing perhaps, is the second admission that the evidence of witnesses before the Magistrate and the Sessions was of a different and contradictory nature. The third ground on which the withdrawal was urged by the Crown was a helpless acknowledgment that the remaining witnesses to be examined would not secure a conviction. The public have a right to demand that an exhaustive and searching inquiry be made and the responsibility be brought home to the proper persons as to how it was possible for the exhibits, while they were in charge of Court officials, to be altered in the way they have been. The British law wisely legislates to the effect that rather than one innocent person be sent to the gallows a number of guilty ones had better be given the benefit of the doubt. But in Burma this proper moral leniency is degenerating into a license and the fault, as far as we are able to judge, lies entirely with the Police. We do not mean that the whole police force is vitiated by corruption and incompetence, but it seems to be lacking in superior officers of proved ability and vigilance; and high Police officers, whose names should not be coupled with bribery, are spoken about with levity in the bazaars.

Notes of the Day.

The German Naval Disaster.

We are still without specific details of the German naval disaster in the Baltic, but the amplification of the earlier news which now comes from Petrograd affords no ground for thinking that there was any exaggeration in the initial reports. The wording of the original telegrams certainly afforded some justification for the contention of some people that a super-Dreadnought in addition to the Moltke had been sunk. And this was assisted by the idea of the same people that the Moltke is not a super-Dreadnought, owing to the confusion of ideas which prevents them from understanding that a cruiser can be a super-Dreadnought. The Goeben and Moltke were, of course, Germany's first super-Dreadnoughts, being of no less than 22,640 tonnage and carrying ten 11-inch guns. It is now confirmed that the Moltke was sunk by a British submarine. The fact is naturally particularly gratifying and has been appreciated in Petrograd, where in the midst of their rejoicings at the removal of a menace that distinctly threatened Petrograd itself, the people of the Russian capital did not forget to pay their tribute to the British Navy by demonstrations outside the British Embassy. The sinking of a super-Dreadnought has a special significance, in view of the many speculations of naval experts as to whether these more modern and larger vessels, with their greater powers of resistance, would succumb as easily to the submarine attack as the older ones which have hitherto been the only victims.

Lessons of the Fight.

We imagine that, as we suggested yesterday, this disaster to the German squadrons that attempted to force the Gulf of Riga will put an end to such exploits in the future,—that is attempts to enter enclosed and mine-protected waters guarded also by submarines. If such waters are efficiently mined and submarines are present it is clear that an attack by a hostile fleet is foredoomed to failure. The affair offers a full justification for the tactical policy pursued by the British Fleet in the North Sea in this respect, and excites the greater admiration for their earlier exploits of this character. It is curious that, while the war has served to demonstrate the small value of fortifications on land and their complete inability to resist the attacks of modern heavy artillery, exactly the opposite experience has been the case in regard to coastal defences, owing to the deadly and irresistible nature of mine defences and submarines. The naval anchorage or arsenal which is protected in this way is practically immune from attack, unless the attacking squadrons are prepared to stake everything on the attempt and suffer enormous losses. Even in such case the issue would be extremely doubtful. Of course the case is different where the point of attack lies on an open coast, such as the coast of Belgium and the enemy fleet holds the command of the sea. In that event the watchfulness of patrols can prevent the laying of mines and the heavy artillery of the big vessels can safely bombard the port. That is what has happened at Zeebrugge, where British warships have once more foiled the attempts of the Germans to make of this little port an effective naval arsenal and fortress.

A Munitions Mystery.

What is the surprise which the Allies are preparing for the Western Front? We do not refer to the inevitable moment when General Joffre will launch a whole series of concentrated attacks on those points at which the German line has been worn to a thinness that makes the breaking of it in a quantity of places merely a question of the day on which the French Commander-in-Chief chooses to begin. But there is something mysterious going on. It was only hinted at in one of Reuter's telegrams a fortnight ago or so, in connection with Mr. Lloyd George's statement in the Commons on the progress of the manufacture of munitions, and the report of the speech itself, which we have now before us, does not go much further. While measures were being taken, said the Minister of Munitions, largely to increase the supply of shells, bombs and grenades, the Munitions Department had reserved a good deal of the shell-producing power for a special programme, on which they had decided to embark as a result of the Boulogne and other conferences, and which in their judgment was for the time being more important than the provision of shells. To meet this large demand, said Mr. George, which would seriously tax the engineering resources of the country for some months to come, ten large munition factories had to be set up and they would have to draw upon the munition volunteers and men released from the colours to provide them with labour.

India and Munitions.

Every Indian has reason to be gratified at the satisfactory news from Simla that arrangements have now been completed by the Railway Board for the manufacture of a variety of war stores and munitions in Railway, Public Works Department, Municipal and above all, private workshops throughout the country. The feature which distinguishes this war from all previous ones is that it is carried on by two classes of soldiers,—the soldiers who are toiling in the munition workshops no less than the soldiers who are fighting in the trenches. India was the first, besides England herself, to send her military sons to vindicate the cause of humanity. And it is only fitting that she should not have been found wanting in contributing the services of her civil fighters in the organised effort upon which the whole Empire is concentrating the full measure of its energies and resources.

British Prisoners in Turkey.

The entry of Turkey in the war on the side of Germany has, of course, been a very unfortunate thing considered from every point of view. Nevertheless, while one cannot but deplore this result of German machinations, it is gratifying that the Germans have not been able to persuade the Turks to fight in any but the manner of absolute gentlemen. This is evident from the way in which British prisoners in Turkey are being treated. According to a Melbourne telegram Rear-Admiral Sir William Cresswell received a private letter from Commander Stoker of the submarine AE 2 sunk in the Sea of Marmora stating that its whole crew are quite fit and are taking their imprisonment in as cheerful a spirit as possible. Special attention appears to have been paid to their health, for they have been interned in the centre of Asia Minor, in a very healthy spot, about 4,000 feet above sea level. A proof of the skill and humanity with which the British wounded, who fall into the hands of the Turks are treated, is given by the following extract appearing in a Home paper from letters received by his parents from an English private:—

I was shot through the chest, and whilst lying wounded on the field was taken prisoner by the Turks. I must tell you right away that I have been treated very well. I am in a splendid hospital at Constantinople, and my wound is healing nicely, thanks to the splendid care and attention it has had from the Turkish doctors. There are six of us, all wounded prisoners, in a very nice little ward, and the German nurses are very kind to us; the Americans also have been very good. Both the American Ambassador and Consul have been in to see us, and a few days ago they sent me a hair brush and comb, tooth brush and paste, soap, and some fruit.

I shall have been in hospital three weeks to-morrow, and we are all being looked after very well indeed. One of the crew of the E 15 in this ward had an operation on his arm two days ago. It had been broken in two places by shrapnel, and when set it had no use in it, so they have operated on the nerves, and they seem pretty confident that it will be all right now.

The Umerkhadi Jail Site.

The debate, at Monday's meeting of the Corporation, on Dr. Meisheri's proposal regarding the use, as a recreation ground, of the site of Umerkhadi Jail, was especially important in that, with one or two exceptions, the speakers who took part in it urged the immediate necessity of taking advantage of a splendid opportunity for doing something to promote the social amenities of the poor of a long-neglected locality. Mr. Orr was alone in thinking that the site was on one of those high grounds which were peculiarly advantageous for residential quarters rather than for recreation purposes. The psychological perversity of this specious plea did not need to be demonstrated by Mr. Wacha asking if it was sought to kill children by opening low-lying spaces for the purposes of recreation. We are ourselves inclined to agree with the view expressed by some speakers that there was no need to refer the matter to a Committee, for the Corporation would have lost nothing by sounding the Government on the subject. The Mandvi Ward has for a long time been crying out for an open space for recreation purposes and the proposal for the removal of the Jail affords a very good opportunity for finding out on what terms the Government would part with the site for this object. On these two points,—which are after all the main issues involved,—there cannot possibly be two opinions.

A Definite Policy Needed.

Two or three decades of the growth of industrialism with its attendant evil of congestion and its insatiable greed for space have shown how opportunity after opportunity has been lost jealously to preserve open spaces handed down by the solicitude of our predecessors, with the result that the beautiful city of which, in many other respects, we are all justly proud, is still more justly reproached with comparing unfavourably with small towns, let alone progressive cities, as regards the provision of sufficient recreation grounds. We think, therefore, that the rebuke which Mr. Wacha administered to the City fathers was not undeserved. For the Corporation has indeed had no definite policy as to open spaces and whenever the question of vacant plots of ground has come up before it, it has not only failed to act on a definite policy, but, as Mr. Wacha said, it has decided differently on different occasions. An attitude like this is certainly not in keeping with the traditions and the generally progressive policy of the Corporation and we trust that it will bestir itself and lose no time in deciding upon a definite policy which will, above all, safeguard the interests of the poor.

THE WAR.

SUMMARY OF TELEGRAMS.

GERMANY AND PEACE.

VON HOLLWEG'S SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT

HEAVY FIGHTING IN GALLIPOLI

BOMBARDMENT OF GERMAN SUBMARINE WORKS.

A Dutch paper reports a secret meeting of German Ministers and leading politicians and publicists at which the Finance Minister is reported to have said that the new loan would completely exhaust the financial resources of Germany and it was necessary to prepare for an honourable peace. The German Chancellor, who had summoned the meeting, and General von Moltke fully agreed.

It is reported from Holland that British warships are bombarding the Selvay Engineering and Submarine Construction Works. The bombardment was terrific and the German batteries were silenced. Heavy clouds of smoke rose over the port.

A French destroyer encountered a German destroyer off Ostend and sank her in action.

According to a Turkish communiqué heavy fighting is in progress on the scene of the fresh British landing at Gallipoli.

The Russian Naval General Staff at Petrograd gives details of the fighting which led to the great Russian naval victory in the Gulf of Riga. It states how despite persistent and re-inforced attacks the Russian fleet held the enemy fleet at bay. Fog eventually favoured some of the enemy ships to penetrate into the Gulf of Riga which owing to the losses sustained and the barrenness of results they apparently evacuated.

The account deals with the sinking of the Russian gunboat Sivoutch which perished gloriously, in an unequal action with a German cruiser after destroying a German destroyer.

The situation in the Riga district is unchanged. The Russians are holding up the German offensive on the Sventa and between Vilna and the Niemen.

The French are again successfully attacking in the Vosges.

Operations for the investment of Tolmino are developing methodically with continual progress. A surprise night attack on the Carso plateau captured some strong trenches.

Great Britain has accepted Denmark's offer to transport the dead heroes of the E13. Germany has apologised to Denmark for firing on the submarine.

GERMANY'S HOPELESS POSITION.

VON HOLLWEG'S SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT.

COMING DISASTER FOR GERMANY.

DR. HOLLWEG'S FEARS.

SPEECH AT A SECRET MEETING.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS).

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24.

The "Telegraaf" learns from Geneva that Dr. Von Bothmann Hollweg convoked a secret sitting of Ministers and leading politicians and publicists prior to the sitting of the Reichstag and the Finance Minister explained that the new war loan would completely exhaust the financial resources of Germany and an increase of Exchequer Bonds would cause complete bankruptcy. Therefore, it was necessary to prepare for an honourable peace.

Dr. Bethmann said that their difficulties were increasing. He advised those present to use their influence to soften the bellicose inclinations and the expansion policy of the Reichstag and the country and carefully prepare peace proposals acceptable to the Entente.

Herr Dernburg's report about the feeling in the United States had made a strong impression.

General von Moltke fully agreed and said that only those who were not informed of the situation could hope for the possibility of the complete defeat of the Russians. The meeting, however, refused to adopt a resolution advising the Reichstag to moderation and Dr. Bethmann then intimated that if the majority of the Reichstag showed an irreconcilable and Chauvinistic attitude he would be obliged to resign as he would not accept responsibility for the disaster.

ARTILLERY FIGHTING IN ARTOIS.

RAILWAY STATIONS BOMBED.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

An evening communiqué says artillery activity continues in the Artois region. The Germans shelled Arras, Montdidier and Rheims. The French replied successfully, damaging the enemy trenches and batteries at several points.

The explosion of a French mine outside Ville-sur-Tourbe completely destroyed an advanced enemy trench.

OPERATIONS IN THE VOSGES.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

The French are again successfully attacking in the Vosges, carrying trenches on the crests of Linge and Barrenkopf.

The French artillery preparation was particularly effective. Elsewhere there were lively cannonades and usual grenade fighting in Argonne.

The French aeroplanes bombarded the railway stations at Lens, Henin, Leitard and Leos, and the railway between Lille and Douai.

HOLT LINER SUNK.

THREE KILLED: SEVEN DROWNED.

LONDON, Aug. 23.

The Holt liner Diomed, 4,600 tons, has been sunk.

The crew were landed to-day.

The captain was killed on the bridge and several of the crew were injured.

LONDON, Aug. 24.

Three were killed outright on the Diomed and seven were drowned.

EQUIPMENT OF DEAD GERMANS FOR NEW RECRUITS.

PARIS, Aug. 24.

The General, commanding the Fourth Bavarian Division, has issued a significant order stating that no arms or equipment must be left on the battlefield.

The dead Germans must be stripped except for trousers and vests and the rest of the clothing and helmets must be sent to Germany for recruits.

SUBMARINE WORKS BOMBARDED.

BRITISH WARSHIPS OFF ZEEBRUGGE.

GERMAN BATTERIES SILENCED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS).

LONDON, Aug. 23.

Telegrams from Flushing describe British warships directing their fire on the Selvay Engineering and Submarine Construction Works.

The bombardment from the sea was terrific from six-thirty and the replies from the German artillery became weak till all the batteries were finally silenced.

Heavy clouds of smoke rose over the port.

Two large British war vessels were still off Zeebrugge at nine o'clock.

NAVAL FIGHT OFF OSTEND

GERMAN DESTROYER SUNK.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

A communiqué says two French destroyers to-day encountered a German destroyer off Ostend and sank her in action. The French destroyers only sustained insignificant damage to hulls.

DEAD HEROES OF E 13.

BODIES TO BE BROUGHT TO ENGLAND

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 23.

Great Britain has accepted most gratefully Denmark's offer to transport the dead bluejackets.

Consequently the steamship Vidar has been transformed into a funeral ship. The hold is now a chapel and fourteen coffins will be placed there covered with wreaths for the heroes of the E13.

The Vidar after a service in the Navy Yard sails on Wednesday for Hull.

An impressive memorial service was held yesterday in the English Church at Copenhagen in the presence of a crowded congregation.

GERMANY APOLOGISES TO DENMARK

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 24.

Germany has apologised to Denmark for firing on the E13.

German commanders have been strictly instructed to observe Danish neutrality.

GERMAN HYDROPLANE STRANDED.

LONDON, Aug. 24.

A German hydroplane has been stranded on the Danish Island of Manoe. It will be confiscated unless it leaves in 24 hours.

COTTON CONTRABAND DECLARATION.

NO RESENTMENT IN U. S.

LONDON, Aug. 24.

The comparative smallness of the present cotton crop and the probability of a new record war consumption by Great Britain and her Allies supporting the market lead the American cotton grower to accept with calmness the British contraband declaration.

Editorials in the leading newspapers of New Orleans, Mobile and Savannah show no resentment.

A New Orleans paper frankly points out that the difficulty of shipping cotton to Germany through neutral countries together with the difficulty of financing such shipments has demoralized the trade.

GERMAN ACTIVITY IN THE STATES.

FURTHER REVELATIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 24.

The "New York World" publishes further revelations of German activity in the United States.

One plan to obtain supplies was to flood Denmark with wheat and other food so that the Danes would be glad to get rid of the surplus.

AMERICA AND THE ARABIC CRIME.

LONDON, Aug. 24.

The American Press continues to denounce the sinking of the Arabic. A fresh appeal to reason with Germany, it argues, would be merely parleying with a murderer.

OPERATIONS IN GALLIPOLI.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN SUVLA REGION.

BRITISH NAVAL GUNS LANDED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS).

LONDON, Aug. 23.

A Turkish communiqué shows that heavy fighting is in progress on the scene of the fresh British landing at Gallipoli.

The communiqué mentions the landing of naval guns on August 21st, after which the enemy numbering a Division, attacked in the district of Anaforta.

SIX NEW V. C.'S.

CONSPICUOUS BRAVERY IN FIELD

(REUTER'S SPECIAL WAR SERVICE)

LONDON, Aug. 23.

The following Victoria Crosses have been awarded:—

CAPTAIN J. F. BUTLER, King's Royal Rifles, attached to the Gold Coast Regiment, for most conspicuous bravery in the Cameroons on November 17th. With a party of thirteen men he went into a thick bush and immediately attacked the enemy, about a hundred strong, including several Europeans, defeated them and captured their machinegun and many loads of ammunition. Also on December 27th when on patrol duty with few men he swam the Ekam River which was held by the enemy alone and in face of brisk fire completed his reconnaissance on the further bank. He returned in safty. Two of his men were wounded while he was actually in water.

CAPTAIN C. C. FOSS, Second Bedfords, for most conspicuous bravery at Neuve Chapelle on March 12th. After the enemy had captured one of our trenches and a counter-attack made by one officer and twenty men had failed, Captain Foss on his own initiative dashed forward with eight men under a heavy fire and attacked the enemy with bombs. He captured the position including 52 Germans occupying it. The capture of this position was of the greatest importance and the utmost bravery was displayed in essaying the task with so very few men.

CORPORAL WILLIAM COSGROVE, first Munster Fusiliers, for most conspicuous bravery in leading his section with great dash during our attack from the beach to the eastward of Cape Helles on April 26th. Cosgrove pulled down the posts of the enemy's high wire entanglements single handed notwithstanding terrific fire on the front and on the flanks, thereby greatly contributing to the successful clearing of the heights.

ACTING CORPORAL ISSY SMITH, Frst Manchesters, for most conspicuous bravery on April 26th near Ypres when he left his company and on his own initiative went well forward towards the enemy's position to assist a severely wounded man whom he carried 250 yards into safety. He was exposed to a heavy machine-gun and rifle fire. Subsequently Corporal Smith displayed great gallantry when the casualties were very heavy in voluntarily assisting to bring in many more wounded throughout the day. He attended them with the greatest devotion to duty regardless of personal risk.

CAPTAIN J. A. LIDDELL, Third Argyll and Sutherlands, for most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on July 31st when making a flying reconnaissance over Ostend, Bruges and Ghent. He was severely wounded and the right thigh was broken causing momentary unconsciousness but by a great effort he recovered partial control after the machine had dropped nearly three thousand feet. Notwithstanding his collapsed state he succeeded although continually fired at, in completing his course and brought the Aeroplane into our lines half an hour after he had been wounded. The difficulties of saving his machine and the life of his observer cannot really be expressed but as the control wheel and throttle control had been smashed and also one of the under-carriage struts it would seem incredible that he could have accomplished the task.

LIEUTENANT F. W. CAMPBELL, First Canadian battalion, for most conspicuous bravery on June 15th during the action at Givenchy. He took two machine-guns over a parapet, arrived at the German first line with one gun and maintained his position there under a heavy rifle, machine-gun and bomb fire notwithstanding that almost the whole of his detachment had been killed or wounded. When our supply of bombs was exhausted he advanced further to an exposed position, fired about a thousand rounds and succeeded in holding back the enemy's counter-attack. This very gallant officer was subsequently wounded and has since died.

GERMAN NAVAL DISASTER.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

A PLUCKY RUSSIAN GUNBOAT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS).

PETROGRAD, Aug. 23.

The Naval General Staff says on that on August 16, the German fleet renewed with heavy forces the attacks on the entrance to the Gulf of Riga. The Russian fleet for two days repulsed the attacks of the enemy, whose attempts to penetrate were singularly favoured by fog. Thus considerable forces got into the Gulf of Riga, while the Russian warships fell back, though continuing to resist without losing touch with the Germans. Then on the 19th and 20th the enemy carried out some reconnaissances in various directions, though at the same time the naval battle continued.

AN UNEQUAL ACTION.

The enemy had suffered considerable losses from a torpedo craft, and the Russians lost the gunboat Sivoutch, which perished gloriously in an unequal action with a German cruiser which was escorting the destroyers. The cruiser closed with the Sivoutch to a distance of four hundred yards. The gunboat was wrapped in flames fore and aft, but continued to answer shot for shot until she sank, having previously destroyed a German destroyer.

ENEMY LOSSES.

The enemy, on the 21st, owing to the losses sustained and the barrenness of results apparently evacuated the Gulf of Riga.

From the 16th to the 21st two German cruisers and not less than eight German destroyers were either put out of action or sunk. At the same time our gallant British Allies torpedoed in the Baltic one of the most powerful Dreadnoughts of the German fleet.

SCENES OF JOYS IN PETROGRAD.

DEMONSTRATIONS OUTSIDE BRITISH EMBASSY.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 23.

The naval successes have come as a great relief after the strain of the past week. The scenes of joy lasted long. They included enthusiastic demonstrations outside the British Embassy.

The plucky little Siboutch was a vessel of only 960 tons with a speed of twelve knots and the crew of 148.

Her commander Tcherkasoff distinguished himself at Port Arthur.

The number of survivors is unknown though the Germans say that they captured two officers and forty men from the sea.

CELEBRATION IN BOMBAY.

By order of his Excellency the Governor of Bombay flags will be displayed on all public buildings to-day in honour of the Russian naval success in the Gulf of Riga.

UNCHANGED SITUATION ON RIGA FRONT.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE HELD UP.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 24.

A communiqué says that the situation in the Riga district is unchanged.

The Russians are holding up the German offensive on the Sventa and between Vilna and the Niemen.

VICEROY'S WAR NEWS

(From our Correspondent.)

SIMLA, Aug. 24.

The Viceroy's war message from the Secretary of State, dated the 23rd August, says:—

A Russian communiqué says that the Russian front remains firm in the region of Riga and westward towards Jacobstadt and Dvinsk. On the left bank of the Upper Niemen and the Upper Bobr there is no important change and the disposition of the Russian troops near Osowiec, the Lower Bobr, the Upper Narew, along the Bielstok-Brest-Litovsk Railway, in the Brest region and along the right bank of the Bug remains almost stationary.

FIRE AT JULLUNDUR.

(News Bureau.)

LAHORE, Aug. 23.

A fire broke out yesterday at the shop of Moti Ram, General Merchant, Jullundur city, The shop and contents were reduced to ashes and a loss of Rs. 40,000 was sustained. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Jullundur Municipality is now considering the question of water-supply to the city.

THE COCOANUT FESTIVAL.

FAIR ON THE MAIDAN.

Yesterday being the Cocoanut Holiday, the annual fair was held on the maidan on the Cruickshank Road. There was a large multitude of spectators who enjoyed themselves thoroughly. There were the usual shows and rows of shops full of dolls and fruit and other knicknacks which are the envy of youngsters. There was also no lack of merry-go-rounds and there was a great demand for these among boys.

The fore-shore on the Back Bay was another busy scene. Here gathered the rich and the poor of Bombay and all Bombay, as far as the Hindu community was concerned, was en fête.

The sea god was worshipped with the usual pomp and ceremonies and the holy thread and cocoanuts were thrown in large numbers, a large force of urchins making a good profit out of the cocoanuts picked up by them.

From yesterday Indian shipping begins plying from one port to another after propitiating the sea god. The monsoon has lost its sting now and the navigators on the coast ports think themselves quite safe in venturing on their perilous trade.

This festival is nowhere observed with such pomp as it is done in Bombay. Rich Hindu merchants propitiate the sea god Varuna by making oblations to him as their trade depends so much upon the caprice of the presiding deity of water. The greatness of Bombay depends on the trading community and it is no wonder that the merchants of the Hindu community are so zealous in worshipping the sea which is the royal road for the huge steamers, which are the medium of transport for the merchandise of the East and West, and which is the mainspring of their prosperity.

Physical culture is not neglected. Cocoanut holiday is the occasion for wrestling matches and any spectator who had the curiosity might have seen these conflicts on the maidan: on the sea-shore and every possible convenient spot in the open. These were not confined to experts only, but everybody who had any penchant for this particular kind of manly exercise was allowed to take a hand in the contest and win his meed, which generally ranges from a turban or a silver armlet or anklet to a few rupees in cash with the usual garlands of flowers.

Another most important thing is the wearing of a new holy thread by all whether they are Brahmins or otherwise. This ceremony takes place in the morning after the sacrifice—homa ceremony, where ghee, rice and other things are offered to the fire.

The Rkshabandhan is another appropriate and picturesque part of the day's duties, when red silk threads are tied round the wrists. This is not a part of the religious ceremony. It has social aspect also.

THE SOCIAL CONFERENCE

The general consensus of opinion was that this Government Order meant additional hardship to the already hard pressed printer. After an hour and a half's discussion it was resolved to submit to the Government a representation explaining to them the difficulties, the printing trade finds itself in, as a result of the enforcement of this order. A Committee consisting of Messrs. Hari Narayan Apte and Narsinha Chintaman Kelkar was appointed to draw up the representation.

LETTERS OF PATENT OF HIGH COURT.

CONTEMPLATED CHAEGES CRITICISED.

(News Bureau.)

CALCUTTA, Aug. 23.

In a communication to the Government of Bengal the Secretary of the British Indian Association discusses the question of certain changes which the Government of India contemplate introducing in the Letters Patent of the High Court. Rajah Rishi Case Law states that if the growth of litigation which necessitated the additional appointment of permanent and temporary judges in the different High Courts be an abnormal one then the Government would certainly be justified in restricting the right of appeal as proposed from the session of a single judge with a view to reduce the volume of litigation. But if the growth is the outcome of natural causes there was no justification for interfering in respect of a right which is so highly valued by the public.

The Committee of the Association hold that the prosperity of the country during the last three decades had contributed to the increase of litigation and the work on the Original Side had considerably increased in spite of the Arbitration Board of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce keeping down cases. Another reason for the increase of judges was to be found in the trial of a certain class of political cases either by Division Benches or Special Tribunals.

The Committee are of opinion that the work in the High Court at the final course of appeal should be usually conducted by the Division Benches of two and not of a single judge. The number of Letters Patent appeals was so small and the results were such that the Committee view with alarm any suggestion of curtailing the right of such appeals and at the same time investing a single judge with larger appellate and revisional powers than they enjoyed. At present, as the changes suggested, the provision of an appeal from one's judgment always acted as a salutary check upon one's decisions and under these circumstances the Committee did not approve of the proposed curtailment of the right of appeal.

PARSI WINS DISTINCTION IN CIVIL ENGINEERING.

Mr. Boman Sanjana has added one more name to the small band of Parsi Civil Engineers who did remarkably well at the Universities of Great Britain. Mr. Boman

MR. BOMAN SANJANA.

Sanjana, who is an L.C.E. of the University of Bombay, by his brilliant University career in London and Glasgow, fulfilled to no small extent the expectations that were formed of him by his friends and Professors in Bombay, when he left India, a couple of years ago, on being selected the first Dr. Gimi Trust Scholar. After taking his Engineering degree in Bombay, Mr. Boman Sanjana had worked as an Engineer for more than a year in the Bombay Port Trust.

He supervised for six months the work of bridge construction on the Thames, under Sir William Errol of Forth Bridge fame. Afterwards he proceeded to Glasgow to qualify for the B.Sc. degree in Engineering. The usual course of three years, he completed in a year and a half. In the recent final examination, he stood third among 28 successful candidates and captured two prizes, one in Civil Engineering and the other in Hydraulics. Moreover, Mr. Sanjana made a special study of Roads and Railways and obtained a diploma for the same, of the Royal Technical College. While in London, he wrote an essay on "Concrete" for the Bombay University Cook Prize of the value of Rs. 400. Since the prize was founded in 1899, no award had been made, as the essays submitted were not up to the required standard. Mr. Sanjana was the first to obtain it. Last year, with his professors he visited big engineering works in Germany and Belgium, and thereby acquired further insight into the technique of his line.

On passing his final examination, Mr. Boman Sanjana desired to return to India, but at the request of his professors he has consented to stay a few months more to act as an Assistant Engineer at the Water Works in the counties round Glasgow, now under construction. He will return to Bombay early this winter.

The "Pioneer's" Bangalore correspondent wires that during this month as many as a dozen Anglo-Indian youths of Bangalore have been accepted by the Army authorities for enlistment in the Dorsetshire and Oxford and Bucks Regiments, and have left for Poona. A much larger number had previously enlisted in the Loyal North Lancs Regiment, many of whom have left with the reinforcements for that unit in East Africa. They are stated to be promising material having passed the test applied as to physical fitness.

EULOGY OF INDIAN TROOPS.

"HAVE SHOWN THE WORLD WHAT INDIA CAN DO"

(News Bureau.)

CALCUTTA, Aug. 23.

A private letter received in Calcutta by the last mail from Mr. John Foreman, an Advocate practising both in England and France, dated London 23rd July, 1915, says:—

"I cannot refrain from expressing my admiration of splendid Indian troops who have so brilliantly distinguished themselves in France against the savage Germans. These brave Indian troops commanded by native high officers of great courage and merited reputation have shown the world what India can do. Not only have they given undoubted proof of matchless valour but they have shown Germany how much they appreciate the beneficent rule of the British Government and their attitude to the British people. In France our soldiers are very proud of their Indian brothers in arms and wherever Indian troops pass in France people cheer them for their numerous deeds of bravery. When the war is over and they return to India they will have a glorious reception. Now you have seen from this war how good is the English system of Government and how bad is the German system of colonization.

EFFECT OF BRITISH RULE IN INDIA.

You will have observed that wherever the British flag floats the natives whom we always try to bind to us by affection and treatment and good Government have voluntarily offered their services to fight for Great Britain and we are proud, I assure you, to see such sincere attitude. Wherever we go, we desire to make the people happy, happier than they were before, more prosperous than ever. When they come to visit us here we try to make them feel that they are in the place of their birth.

MILITARY OPPRESSION IN GERMAN COLONIES.

See how different it is in German colonies where there is brutal treatment of natives where the system of Colonial Government is severe military oppression, and what is the result? As soon as the natives in German colonies get a chance, they go against their cruel masters (Germans) and are happy to go over to the British and beg of us to establish British Government instead, for their protection, happiness, peace and prosperity. That is what happened in German South Africa where natives under German oppressive rule were delighted to see the British coming to turn out the Germans and give them good Government. From every quarter of the globe the natives have come forward to support the British in this great war because they know that we are fighting for liberty and independence of all the world against German tryanny."

CHEESE COOKERY.

NOURISHING AND APPETISING RECIPES

Cheese figures largely in Continental cookery, and besides giving tastiness to farinaceous and other more or less insipid foodstuffs is, of course, valuable for its nourishing qualities. Used in this way cheese is also light and easy of digestion. The most should be made of it in these days of difficulty with regard to beef and mutton.

RIZ AU FROMAGE.

Let boil for a few minutes only a quarter of a pound of good Carolina rice which has been previously well washed and soaked. Take up, strain, let cool. Put into saucepan with a lump of fresh butter and some meat gravy, salt, and pepper. Let cook gently till tender. Add quarter of a pound of grated cheese, stirring carefully till perfectly mixed. Take up and serve very hot.

POUDING AU FROMAGE.

Boil a dozen moderate-sized potatoes; when done strain and crush or pass through the sieve. Add quarter of a pound of grated cheese, a teacupful of cream, four beaten-up eggs, salt, and pepper. Put into a baking dish and cook in the oven till nicely browned.

RAMEQUINS AU PAIN.

Put a lump of fresh butter into a saucepan with several slices of white bread. Mix together the yolks of six eggs, a little cream, and quarter of a pound of grated cheese. Pour this into the saucepan upon the bread and let cook gently for a few minutes.

MACARONI AU FROMAGE.

Put into a saucepan of fresh water several small onions, a lump of fresh butter, salt, and pepper. Let boil, and break into the boiling water one pound of macaroni. When tender take up, strain, put into a saucepan with quarter of a pound of butter, three-quarters of a pound of grated cheese, two ounces of parmesan, and a tumbler of fresh milk. Boil gently for a few minutes and serve very hot.

POACHED EGGS AND CHEESE.

Poached eggs make a nice luncheon dish served with cheese thus: Put fresh butter and grated cheese in a baking dish. Let them melt in the oven. Poach the eggs and set on the cheese. Serve at once; or have slices of hot buttered toast, peppered with grated cheese, ready upon which to lay the poached eggs.

OEUIS A LA PIEMONTAISE.

This is an Italian way of serving oeufs sur le plat. Let a lump of butter melt in a baking dish. Cut a piece of cheese into very thin slices and lay them in the butter. Break fresh eggs upon the cheese, add salt and pepper. Let cook slowly for a few minutes, and serve very hot.

SOUFFLE AU FROMAGE.

Mix about two ounces of white flour with fresh milk or cream; heat, stirring continually to ensure smoothness. Add about half a pound of grated cheese and the yolks of five eggs. Beat well together. Add the whites beaten to a snow. Put into a mould or into small pots, let rise, and bake in the oven.

HOLIDAY DRESS IN FRANCE,

The studied absence of bright colours or gay combinations of colour, the quietness of tone and style which marks the well dressed Frenchwoman of these days of trial writes the Paris correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian," is observed even in the bathing costumes and the dressing-gowns for seashore wear. We see little or nothing of the coquettish modes for the bains de mer usual in past years. How many of those smart bains de mer, sea-bathing resorts, are now in the hands of the enemy, have been bombarded like Ostend, or are full of ambulances and hospitals! For bathing costumes black has the preference as it has had for several years past. Dark blue, grey, or khaki come next. Dressing-gowns are in white and khaki stripes, Caps, often in normal times providing so bright a note of colour are made very simply this season in neutral shades—at least as far as we can see now in Paris

At Biarritz, Nice, and other places far from the scenes of war, beneath hot, sunny skies, brighter colours are doubtless worn, because in those regions gay colouring is the common rule in the dress both of men and women. But Parisians of French people of the more northern parts of France going to Brittany for sea bathing or to the country for the summer holidays keep to quiet styles and colours. White costumes, simply made, are very largely worn—white gowns, white coats, white hats. Nothing can be in better taste or more suitable.

One all-important feature of French bathing costumes as well as of the simplest seaside or country dressing should be noted—however quiet in colour or style, they are invariably carefully designed and well cut The plainest bathing dress is dainty; nothing rough-and-ready is permissible even in such a year as this, at least among people at a safe distance from the invading armies.

THE NEW COAT.

The fitted basque that is cut in one with the coat proper is the last syllable in tailor-mades. How this is contrived it is impossible to describe. It is, of course, by the magic of cut which is so alluring the waist line is marked; the hips are suppressed, and there is just the suspicion of emphasis on the shoulders and over the bust. The sleeves are inset, and there is the true tailor-made atmosphere about it which could never be achieved by the loosely-fitting coats that were so fashionable a short time ago. The new coats are all longer, the collars are ultra high and have been wittily styled "chokers." The Russian coat is presented in a new guise; the belt is conspicuous by its absence in front, but at the sides there is a belt, hence an unbroken line is maintained in front. This is, indeed, pleasant news for the short woman, as a belted coat is the reverse of becoming to her.

AN ECONOMICAL SOUP.

This is the time to make and serve the French vegetable bouillon—so wholesome, so relatively inexpensive, and so tasty. It is also very easy to make. Soak overnight about half a pound of good white haricot beans. In the morning put them into a saucepan or stewpan holding about five quarts. Add then a certain quantity of all the fresh vegetables available—carrots, turnips, onions, leeks, a lettuce, a little thyme and parsley, and anything else you like. Let simmer for five hours, until the five quarts of water are reduced to two. The soup may then be eaten as it is, or made more delicate by being passed through the sieve, and, if necessary, slightly thickened with tapioca. A spoonful of cream may also be stirred in.

The great scheme of underground drainage initiated at Amritsar by Mr. C. M. King, I.C.S., Deputy Commissioner has been practically completed. As regards one portion of the City the Government gave two lakhs and twenty thousand as grant towards the scheme which will prove an inestimable boon. The scheme is gradually to be extended over the whole city.

THE PRINCESS REST GOWN.

The Princess rest gown is being warmly welcomed. The "fourreau" is usually of crepe de chine of a delicate shade. The over-dress, of the coat character, is outlined with fur, the angel sleeves greatly enhancing its charm. Another pretty accessory for wearing with these "fourreaux" consists of a little cape which just covers the shoulders, with short chemise sleeves finished with long-knotted stole-ends. As will be readily understood, the sash occupies a prominent position. It is ever arranged well below the natural waist-line, and harmonises with the coat or accessory, not with the "fourreau." Another phase of the rest gown is reminiscent of the time-honoured "djibbah," which slips over the head. This new aspect of the most comfortable of all gowns is really a cross between the surplice and the "djibbah." It is never seen to greater advantage than when carried out in black charmeuse edged with fur. White swansdown is marvellously effective for this purpose, but it must be confessed that it is very perishable. There is also a wonderful fascination about the Grecian tea-gown. The impression left after viewing one is that a length of byzantine-coloured charmeuse, hemmed with golden tissue, has been draped round the figure with true artistic negligence. The drapery is drawn back on the left side and reveals an under-dress of golden tissue posed on flesh-coloured tulle. In order that the picture may be quite in harmony, boots of gold brocade are worn with it. These boots hook across the back and are innocent of all seams.

THE COLLAR IN EXCELSIS.

Equal in importance to the blouse is the collar which accompanies it. It may be made of fine net, or muslin, or linen. In its highest and mightiest, which is also its most fashionable form, the chin and features of the wearer are just visible through the opening in front. There is a particularly charming blouse of blue satin paillette, which is both smart and useful; the long row of buttons is of topaz, and the collar can be worn high or low. A charming rest-jacket of net over pink ninon is decorated with rosettes of pink ribbon, and the tea-gown. It is carried out in palest pink charmeuse allied with figured ninon and pink roses.

GREEN PEAS.

SOME FRENCH WAYS OF COOKING.

While they are in season green peas should be made the very most of this wartime more than in normal years, says the Paris correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian." For peas, as is well known, are an excellent substitute for meat. They may be cooked in many different ways, and when not of the very finest, most mellow quality are better served according to one or other of the French recipes rather than plainly boiled in the classic English style. For invalids they should be served as purée, thus:—Boil till quite tender pass through the sieve, add salt, pepper, a lump of fresh butter, and a sprinkling of flour.

PETITS POIS A LA CREME.

Melt a lump of fresh butter in a saucepan large enough to hold the peas, add a little flour, a bouquet, the peas salt and pepper. Let simmer till the peas are tender, moving often with a fork. Strain off the peas, add to the liquor a little cream and a little powdered sugar. Mix well and pour over the peas. Heat up over the fire for about five minutes.

PETITS POIS AU JAMBON.

This is a nice luncheon dish. Melt and brown a lump of butter, add a little flour, and ham or bacon cut up into quite small pieces. When the ham is nicely browned add beef gravy, the peas, several small new onions, salt, pepper, and chopped parsley. Let cook slowly till the peas are tender.

PETITS POIS AU JUS.

Boil the peas in salted water. Strain when nearly done, and finish cooking with chopped parsley in good beef gravy.

The French do not cook mint with peas, but when plainly boiled "à l'anglaise" they are often served with white powdered sugar.

An excellent soup for the family table is made thus:—Let peas, peeled potatoes, onions, and a young carrot or two simmer gently for two or three hours, duly seasoned. Pass through the sieve. Heat up with a lump of fresh butter and add a spoonful or two of cream just before serving. If after straining the soup is considered too thin thicken with a little tapioca.

In France a lettuce is often boiled with green peas and taken out when the peas are strained. The lettuce juice gives an added flavour to the peas. A beaten-up egg is often added to the cream with which boiled peas are served after straining.

THE POPE AND PEACE.

FULL TEXT OF THE APPEAL.

The following is the full text of the Pope's appeal for peace:—

When, though unworthy, we were called to succeed upon the Apostolic Throne the most kindly Pontiff Pius X., whose saintly and beneficent life had been shortened by grief at the fratricidal strife then lately kindled in Europe, we too, felt, in turning our timorous gaze towards the bloodstained battlefields, the anguish of a father who sees his house wrecked and left desolate by a furious hurricane; and, thinking with sorrow inexpressible of our youthful sons cut down by death in thousands, we took to our heart, opened wide by Christian charity, all the woe of mothers and wives prematurely widowed, and all the inconsolable mourning of children too soon robbed of fatherly guidance.

In our mind, sharing the troubled trepidation of numberless families, and conscious of the imperious duties imposed upon us in days so sorrowful by the sublime mission of peace and love to us entrusted, we quickly conceived the firm intention of consecrating our every activity and all our power to the reconciliation of the belligerent peoples.

We made, indeed, a solemn promise to the Divine Saviour, who at the price of His own blood, made all men brothers. And the first words we addressed to the nations and to their Regents, as Supreme Pastor of Souls, were words of peace and love.

But our loving and insistent counsel, that of a father and a friend, remained unheard. Thus sorrow increased in us; but our purpose was not abated. Therefore, we continued to turn trustfully to the Omnipotent, in Whose hand are the lives and the hearts of subjects as of kings, invoking from Him the cessation of the terrible scourge.

With our fervent and humble prayer we associated all the faithful, and to render it more efficacious we ordained that it be accompanied by works of Christian penitence.

But to-day, on the sad anniversary of the outburst of the tremendous conflict, issues from our heart yet more warmly the prayer that war may soon cease, and yet higher the paternal cry for peace. May this cry, overcoming the fearful clash of arms, reach the peoples now at war and their Heads, inclining both to kinder and serener counsels.

In the Holy Name of God, in the name of our Heavenly Father and Master, by the sacred blood of Christ, the price of human redemption, we adjure you whom Divine Providence has chosen to govern the belligerent nations finally to end this horrible bloodshed, which has now dishonoured Europe for a year.

It is the blood of brethren that is being shed on land and sea. The fairest regions of Europe, of this garden of the world, are strewn with corpses and ruin. Where, not long ago, there throve the industrious labour of workshops and the fruitful effort of the field, the cannon now thunders terribly, and, in its destructive fury, spares neither villages nor towns; but sows everywhere bloodshed and death.

Before God and man you bear the awful responsibility of peace and war. Hear our prayer—the paternal voice of the Vicar of the Eternal and Supreme Judge to whom you must give account both of your public undertakings and of your private acts.

AWFUL COST OF THE STRUGGLE.

The copious wealth with which God the Creator has blessed the lands subject to you permits you to continue the struggle; but at what a cost! Let the thousands of young lives daily spent on the battlefield give answer. Let the ruins of so many towns and villages, of so many monuments raised by the piety and genius of ancestors make reply. Do not the bitter tears secretly shed within home walls or at the foot of altars of supplication, do not they also repeat that the price of the daily struggle is great, too great? Let it not be said that the mighty conflict cannot be settled save by force of arms. Let the mutual will to destroy be laid aside! Be it remembered that nations die not! Humbled and oppressed, they bear with quivering impatience the yoke laid upon them, preparing to renew the contest and handing down from generation to generation a sorry heritage of hate and vendetta.

Why not weight at once, with conscience serene, the rights and the just aspirations of the peoples? Why not begin with willing minds an exchange of views, direct or indirect, with the object of taking into account, as far as possible, those right and aspirations, and thus put an end to the immense struggle, as has happened in other similar circumstances?

Blessed be he who shall first raise the olive branch, and shall extend his right hand to the foe, offering reasonable conditions of peace! The equilibrium of the world and the sure and prosperous tranquillity of the nations rest far more upon mutual good will and upon respect of others' rights and of others' dignity than upon the multitude of armed hosts and upon formidable girdles of fortresses.

This is the cry of paece that bursts, high-toned, in this sad day from our heart. And we invite all the friends of peace in the world to join hands with us in hastening the end of the war which now for a whole year has turned Europe into a vast field of battle.

May merciful Jesus, by the intercession of His Mother of Sorrows, grant that there shine at last, after so terrible a contest, the placid and radiant dawn of peace, image of His divine countenance. May there soon resound hymns of gratitude to the Most High, the Giver of all Good, for the reconciliation of States; may the peoples, made brothers by love, return to peaceful emulation in study, in arts and industries, and, restoring the Empire of Right, determine henceforth to entrust the settlement of their differences no longer to the edge of the sword, but to reasons of equity and justice, pondered with due calm and deliberation.

This will be their fairest and most glorious conquest.

In the dear hope that the tree of peace may quickly return to gladden the world with its precious fruits, we bestow the Apostolic Benediction upon all who form the mystic flock entrusted to us, and also on those not yet belonging to the Roman Church; and we pray the Lord to bind them in His bonds of perfect charity!

Rome, from the Vatican, July 28, 1915.

THE COMILLA DACOITY AND MURDER

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE LOOT

(NEWS BUREAU.)

COMILLA, Aug. 23.

Further particulars are now available of the dacoity accompanied by murder which was committed at the house of the Zemindars of Haripur. On the 14th August at candlelight when the arati was going on in the house of the Zemindars a gang of dacoits numbering more than a dozen entered the house coming by boat from the river. They at once made for the room where guns were kept and demanded immediate delivery of the guns. On being refused, they at once shot dead one man and mortally wounded another who subsequently died. One Brahmin officer of the Zemindars has also been wounded. Some of the male members of the house were tied up in the room while the ladies were allowed to go away. The dacoits broke open the iron safes and forcibly took away all the available money in gold and silver and also jewellery and ornaments. Though the villagers assembled near the house they could not offer any resistance. The dacoits left the place in boats. Most of the jewelleries were kept in the house for safe custody by villagers. The house is a two-storeyed building situated on the river and steps on it lead to the river ghat. Nearly within a mile was Harinber, a jute agency station, where there was a steam launch and a number of armed guards posted, but these guards could not come to the Zemindar's help leaving their own place unsafe. The total loss is reported to come up to about Rs. 15,000. Haripur is now under a vast expanse of water which greatly helped the dacoits to make good their escape. The Zemindars are the richest men in the district and had licensed guns in their possession and retainers in their employ. It is reported that all the guns had been taken away. The dacoits had masks on.

SEQUEL TO MADDEN DIVORCE CASE

RULE FOR PROSECUTION DISCHARGED.

(NEWS BUREAU.)

CALCUTTA, Aug. 23.

At the High Court yesterday Justice Greaves disposed of the rule obtained by Cyril Chilton, Manager of Nestle and Anglo-Swiss Milk Co., calling on Charles James Madden, assistant in L. I. Rapp-apart and Company, to show cause why sanction should not be granted to prosecute the latter for bringing an alleged false charge. This is the sequel to the divorce case brought by Madden against his wife Mary Florence Madden on the ground of her misconduct with several persons unknown. Justice Greaves who tried the case granted a decree nisi for dissolution of marriage in connection with the divorce case, in which Chilton was made co-respondent. The charge against Chilton was subsequently after one day's hearing of the case withdrawn unconditionally. Chilton now wanted sanction under Section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code to prosecute Madden under Section 209 of the Indian Penal Code.

His Lordship issued a rule, which came on for hearing to-day. His Lordship after hearing arguments on both sides delivered judgment dealing with the facts and arguments adduced on both sides and in conclusion said:—"I have come to the conclusion that although I think Madden acted with extreme recklessness and he is certainly deserving of any punishment that can be inflicted on him for pain and sorrow he has brought on Chilton in this matter, yet I do not think I should be justified in saying that without a shadow of any doubt he knew that the charges he was making against Chilton were false at the time he made them. I think, as I have said before, that he acted with extreme recklessness but that of course is not any ground for basing any charge. The result is that the rule must be discharged but I make no order as to costs."

CHARGES OF CHEATING.

(NEWS BUREAU.)

CALCUTTA, Aug. 23.

At the Central Police Court to-day Mr. Keays, officiating Chief Presidency Magistrate, had before him a case in which James Walsh alias Riversdale was prosecuted on a charge of having cheated Messrs. Attoo and company in respect of some scantlings valued at Rs. 440. The case was filed pending the decision of a case against the same accused in the Kyd Street Police Court in which the accused was charged by Messrs. Samuel Fitze and Company with having cheated them in respect of a large quantity of disinfectants. The accused was, however, acquitted in that case and the present case brought by Messrs. Attoo and Company was revived.

The accused was further charged with having cheated Babu Khetra Mohan Pal, proprietor of the Modern Typewriter Company in respect of Rs. 71, the price of a Remington typewriting machine which the accused bought from him.

After some evidence was recorded the further hearing of the case was adjourned.

FIGHTING IN GALLIPOLI

HEROISM OF THE 14th SIKHS.

REVELATION OF CLEAREST LOYALTY AND OF NOBLEST DUTY.

Lieutenant Compton Mackenzie, R.M. gives the following description in the "Westminister Gazette," of the battle round Krithia in which the 14th Sikhs distinguished themselves:—

The deeds of individual regiments emerge from the mighty events of this war, as often the landscape hidden by the mark of bursting shells displays after the battle its clear and noble features. Such a revelation emerges in the conduct of the 14th Sikhs during the Battle of the Fourth of June, a revelation of clearest loyalty and of noblest duty.

The brief account of that battle, a greater battle than any fought in the South African War, established the fact that on our centre progress was made, but that on our left and on our right, owing to the strength of the enemy's position, some of this progress could not be consolidated.

The Kereves Dere, which has held up the French our right, is now at last threatened by the Battle of the Twenty-first of June. A similar obstacle, although not so severe, and already, as regards the wider southern portion, occupied by us on both sides, held up the Indian Bridges on our left. The Saghir Dere is a ravine west of Krithia, with a not very wide opening in the sandy cliffs to the south-west of the Peninsula. The sides are covered with a thick tangle of brushwood, and run down, sometimes sheer from a height of fifty feet, into a narrow bottom full of arbutus and the stones of the dried-up watercourse.

On the morning of the battle the 88th Brigade held the country to the right; on the left was the Indian Brigade, which included the Lancashire Fusiliers. The 14th Sikhs were astride the ravine, linking their own brigade with the Worcesters, who formed the left of the 88th, by a line of trenches about 150 yards wide.

On the west, above the ravine, the ground, matted with heather, cistuses, and various stunted shrubs, sloped up towards two lines of Turkish trenches which confronted us from a distance of 200 yards and 350 yards. On the east beyond our trenches the ground sloped downward to the edge of the ravine from a crest line about 200 yards away, the distance between the two sets of trenches being 250 yards. Both the Turks and we used the ravine itself as a communicating trench with the rear. This piece of ground was unfortunately exposed by its aspect to the fire not only of the trenches in front, but more dangerously to that of the powerful trenches on the side of the Saghir Dere, which dominated not only the ravine itself, but also the open ground eastward as far as the crest line.

A FLANK ATTACK.

On the morning of June 4 the Sikhs were ordered to advance in two lines. The front line would link the attack of the Indian Brigade with that of the 88th Brigade by moving forward along the sides of the ravine, and so, by a flank attack, help the assault upon the trenches opposed to the Indian Brigade. The second line would advance along the ravine to attack the second line of enemy trenches. The Turks had placed several small trenches across the bottom of the ravine, and there would probably be machine-guns well hidden on the steep slopes.

After a tremendous bombardment that ran from sea to sea the Allied line advanced at noon. On the right of the Saghir Dere the 88th Brigade went forward with complete success, and the Worcesters, who were in touch with the Sikhs, actually charged through four lines of Turkish trenches. The Sikhs, however, came full into the cross-fire of rifles and machine-guns as they moved over the exposed slope. Nevertheless the two companies did not falter in their determination, but kept pace with the advance of the Brigade. Notwithstanding their losses on the slope downward to the edge of the Saghir Dere, they reached the Turkish trenches, carried them, and bayoneted the occupants, who tried to escape into the ravine. All day and all night those two companies held the left of the trenches taken by the 88th Brigade, and in the morning when they were relieved there remained one British officer, one Indian officer and fourteen men.

HOT ASSAULT IN ENEMY TRENCH.

Down in the ravine the day went badly for the Sikhs: the battalion on their left had failed to carry the first line of Turkish trenches and their web of barbed wire, so that the enemy was free to concentrate a violent fire on the attack of the Saghir Dare. Machine-guns opened on them from both sides at the moment they came out of their trenches. Four British officers and a quarter of the rank and file fell at once. A few groups gloriously led managed to clamber to the point at which they hoped to see the two companies of their first line in hot assault upon the enemy's trench. But when with tremendous effort they arrived, they saw that the frontal attack on their left had failed. Some dead ground gave them time to muster the survivors: a scar in the ravine was stormed: two machine-guns were dragged up; entrenchments were desperately dug: and thus they perched upon the side of the Saghir Dere—the Colonel, the Doctor, and forty-seven men. There all through the night they held on, but in the morning the Turks from above bombed them back down into the ravine. The crews of the guns had been killed, and although the guns had to be abandoned, all that was left of the second line retired in good order. A bomb destroyed one gun: the other has since been recovered. So much for the second line of the 14th Sikhs in the Battle of the Fourth of June.

The other two companies of the first line had, with the rest of their own brigade, advanced against the trenches in front of them, but when the main attack had failed, they would not go back. All day by the edge of the Saghir Dere did they cling to their position, and when at last they retired they left three-quarters of their strength and every British officer behind.

On the morning of June 4 the 14th (K.G.O.) Sikhs moved out to the attack, with fifteen British officers, fourteen Indian officers and 514 men. On the morning of June 5 three British officers, three Indian officers, and 134 men were left. No ground was given; no man turned his back; no man lingered on the way. The trenches of the enemy that ran down into the ravine were choked with the bodies of Turks and Sikhs, lying there for ever at rest from that hell of hand-to-hand encounters. On the slope beyond, the bodies of those tall and grave warriors, all face downward where they fell indomitably advancing, lay thickly among the stunted aromatic scrub, Achi Baba was before them, and Eastward the sun was rising out of Asia.

This little chronicle of a great-hearted regiment tells how at one point it happened that progress on our centre was not consolidated; but progress more perdurable was consolidated on the Fourth of June, progress written in blood for England and for India, progress that will be consolidated when the red chalk lines upon the maps have long since faded away.

After the stress and worry of a busy day at the office take a dose of Stearns' Wine of Cod Liver Extract. It infuses a new strength and energy. 14

KING'S CHARGE TO WELSH GUARDS'.

"PROVE YOURSELVES TRUE SONS OF WALES."

The King presented their first colours to the Welsh Guards, on August 3. The most remarkable part of the proceedings was the singing of the National Anthem of Wales by a special glee party. Lord Kitchener and Mr. Lloyd George were present at the ceremony.

The King, who was wearing the uniform of the Welsh Guards, inspected the battalion and afterwards addressed them. His Majesty said: "I am proud to think it has been possible to add to my Guards a regiment raised in the Principality of Wales. it was with special pleasure that I approved of the creation of the Prince of Wales's Company in your battalion, and that my eldest son should in this way be identified with the regiment. To-day the colours bear no names of battles fought or victories won, and your noble deeds in the coming days will be inscribed upon them.

"In committing the colours to your care I know you will look to them and prove yorselves to be true sons of loyal and gallant Wales, and worthy of the glorious traditions of the Brigade of Guards. I wish you God-speed. May all possible success attend you."

When the commanding officer, Lord Harlech, had replied, the colours were unfurled and the ceremony ended with a march past and cheers for the King.

GERMAN WHO SERVED AT FRONT WITH BRITISH.

BOUND OVER FOR FAILING TO REGISTER

After serving for two years in the Royal Engineers and fighting for ten months at the front, William Ester, aged twenty-three, was bound over on Aug. 3 in the sum of £20 for two years, at Aldershot, on a charge of being a German and failing to register. Ester was identified as having served as a driver in the Royal Engineers.

The accused said he knew his father was a German. He was born in Germany but did not know the place. He was taken to England as a baby, and had been there ever since. He enlisted in the English Army, and had been for ten months at the front, fighting against the Germans.

"I am loyal to England," he declared, "I hate Germany. I wish now that I had been shot instead of being brought back here. I thought that having served in the English Army I was exempt from registering."

Major Henzell: I disagree with the decision. I only give it out as chairman.

DERAILMENT OF A MAIL TRAIN.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR YOUR STOMACH TROUBLE.

IT NEUTRALISES ACIDITY AND PREVENTS FERMENTATION.

Doubtless you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs, etc. and so you know that these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases they do not even give relief—but before giving up hope and deciding that you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate, oxides or citrates, but pure bisurated magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any chemist in either powder or tablet form. Take half-a-teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralise the harmful acid which now causes your food to ferment giving rise to wind, heartburn, flatulence and many other unpleasant symptoms, and you will find that, provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately afterward, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain and discomfort to follow.

Look at these Twins

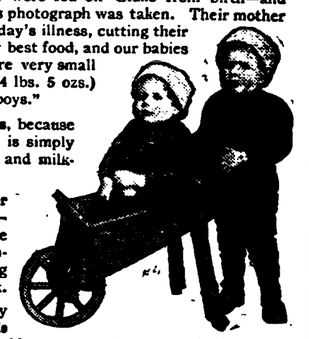
—are they not bonnie?—they were fed on Glaxo from birth—and were 16 months old when this photograph was taken. Their mother writes: "They have not had a day's illness, cutting their teeth easily. Glaxo is the very best food, and our babies are a good proof; for they were very small when born (4 lbs. 12 ozs. and 4 lbs. 5 ozs.) and now they are fine healthy boys."



Glaxo builds bonnie babies, because it is not an artificial food; it is simply pure milk, with extra cream and milk-sugar added.

Glaxo is a complete food for all babies—weak or strong—because it contains the same quantity of bone-making, brain-building and muscle-producing material as healthy breast milk.

Glaxo is made ready for baby by adding hot water only—do not add either milk or cream—no cooking—so easy to prepare that anyone, even a child, can do it.

Give your baby Glaxo, and watch him harden, watch him daily gain in weight, health and strength.
